Code of Business Conduct & Ethics

Policy ID: LEG-ETH-001
Version: 5.1
Effective Date: 1 January 2025

Statement from Leadership

Apex Global's reputation is built on ethical conduct and personal accountability. This Code outlines the principles that guide our decisions and actions across all markets in which we operate.

1. Gifts & Entertainment

- Gifts over USD 100 must be disclosed.
- Gifts over USD 250 are prohibited.
- Client-hosted dinners or entertainment may be accepted but must be reported in conjunction with Finance policies to ensure reimbursement limits and conflicts of interest are observed.

Employees should consult both the Code of Business Conduct and the Travel & Expense Policy when submitting claims for client-hosted meals or entertainment. Scenarios include:

- Client Dinner: If the client pays for a dinner exceeding the standard USD 45 limit, employees must still record and disclose it.
- Alcohol at Client Events: Alcohol can be consumed at client-hosted events but reimbursement requires disclosure.
- Multiple Approvals: Some high-value client dinners may require both Finance and Compliance approval.

Employees must ensure that accepting such benefits does not create a conflict of interest, in line with corporate ethics standards.

3. Conflicts of Interest

Employees must disclose any personal or financial interests that could influence business decisions. This includes accepting meals, gifts, or reimbursements that may affect decision-making.

4. Speak-Up Policy

Employees are encouraged to report concerns without fear of retaliation.
